PRICE THREE CENTS.

UNDER THE SPREADING CHESTNUT TREE NEW PALTZ MUST BE DRY

The Village Smithy May Continue to Stand But There Must Be Only Air in the Bellows or Henry Williams Will Have to Return to Jail.

Appeals in criminal cases were heard by Judge Joseph M. Fowler at county court chambers this morning in a number of cases.

Limited to Iron "Kicks."
In the case of The People against Henry Williams, who was convicted before Justice of the Peace Barnes of the town of New Paltz on January 2, 1922, of assault in the third degree, and who served five days out of a twenty days' sentence before being released from jail on his appeal to the county court, a consent by Justice Barnes to suspension of sentence was filed by Judge James Jenkins, who appeared for Williams.

According to Judge Jenkins, Williams has served the people of New Paltz faithfully and satisfactorily in two capacities: as the village blacksmith and also by serving them with refreshments not otherwise obtainable—at least in New Paltz. Williams, said Judge Jenkins, has served the Jenkins family for a number of years as blacksmith, and he could speak most highly of the nature of his services and the quality of his workmanship.

After Williams had ceased serving the people of New Paltz—as a blacksmith—for five days by reason of his incarceration in the Ulster county jail, said Judge Jenkins, there was a general demand on the part of the people that he should return there as promptly as possible for they found they needed him—as a blacksmith—and could not get along without his services—as a blacksmith.

Therefore, said Judge Jenkins, after consultation among the people of New Paltz, Justice of the Peace Barnes had consented if Williams would discontinue his services as a bootlegger and would devote himself to the ordinary pursuit of blacksmithing, sentence should be suspended on him by the county court.

Judge Fowler accordingly modified the judgment of Justice Barnes by suspending sentence, and Williams may now continue undisturbedly his much sought-after services to the good people of New Paltz—as a blacksmith.

Hager Settled.
In the case of The People against Addison Hager, who was indicted for failure to report an automobile accident in which he had been one of the participants, William D. Brinaker, Jr., who appeared for Hager, moved to dismiss the indictment and cancel the defendant's bond on the ground that the complainant did not desire to prosecute.

Judge Jenkins, who appeared for the complainant, said two civil actions for damages had been brought against Hager, one for injury to the car with which he had collided, and one for personal injuries. The complainant in the criminal case did not oppose the application, he said.

District Attorney Traver stated the facts relating to the indictment, and Judge Fowler granted the motion to dismiss it.

The Philosophy of Diplomacy.
Argument was had in the case of The People against Floyd Minkler, who was convicted of assault in the third degree before a justice of the peace of the town of Saugerties and sentenced to the Ulster county jail for ten days' imprisonment. The complainant in the criminal case did not oppose the application, he said.

PROMOTIVE SURVEY REPORT WILL APPEAR IN THE FREEMAN

The Promotive Survey of Kingston, which purports to be an expert diagnosis of the condition of the community, with suggestions for improvement and warning against ill-advised effort, should be read by every citizen.

Those who made the survey do not claim that it is perfect, and perhaps as much benefit may come from criticising it as by following it. But criticism should be intelligent and based on what the report really says.

In order that everybody may have an opportunity to read this report, it will be published in full, without the slightest change, in The Freeman. The first installment will appear on Saturday.

SATURDAY NIGHT ON THE STRAND NOT WITH GYPSIES

Since the Completion of Rondout Creek Bridge Traffic in Downtown Business Thoroughfare Has Increased Largely.

Residents of the city who of late years have not been in the custom of visiting the Strand between Broadway and Hasbrouck avenue, in several years on a Saturday night, have been astounded by the greatly increased auto traffic on those nights, when both sides of the street are found thickly parked with automobiles.

The great increase in the number of automobiles is due to the fact that since the completion of the Rondout Creek Bridge residents of the town of Esopus find it very convenient to drive into the lower business section and do their Saturday night shopping. In the days when the Skillypot was operating traffic was very light down town.

As in all cities the size of Kingston Saturday afternoon and night is devoted to shopping, and while many business men downtown were afraid that the opening of the bridge would divert traffic elsewhere they have found that it has increased traffic several times over.

GAMES FRIDAY IN COLUMBIAN BALL LEAGUE

The postponed game between the Immaculate Conception team and the St. Joseph's will be played Saturday morning at Forsyth Park.

P. T. A. School No. 1.

The Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 1 will hold a meeting at the school tonight at 7:30.

After listening to arguments in regard to the provision of law requiring service of papers on the justice within five days, Judge Fowler said he had previously followed a decision rendered by the county court of Yates county sustaining the section, and would be consistent by dismissing the appeal.

Various papers were introduced in evidence and several motions were made to form a record on which an appeal from Judge Fowler's decision can be taken to the appellate division of the supreme court regarding the section under which the appeal was dismissed.

"Not a Chinaman's Chance."
Argument also was had in the case of The People against Joseph Merante, Jr., who was fined $25 by Police Justice Henry E. McKenzie for violating the highway law and paid the fine under protest, in which case a motion was made by District Attorney Traver to dismiss the appeal taken by Merante on the ground that justice to the defendant had not been served with a copy of the appeal and papers on which it was granted within five days as required by law. The motion was opposed by Merante's counsel, County Attorney John W. Eckert.

An affidavit of Police Justice McKenzie was to the effect that he had not been served with the papers of the appeal and was unable to make a return. District Attorney Traver character named Gallacher who said Judge McKenzie had informed him that the testimony had been destroyed.

Mr. Eckert in opposing the motion said that Merante and a friend had been arrested after an automobile collision on the state highway near Port Jervis with a car owned by a man named Osborne. It had been testified on the hearing before Judge McKenzie that the people in the Osborne automobile had seen the Merante car first when it was five hundred feet away, and had had it in view all the time until the collision occurred, and that the left-hand light on the Merante car was lighted.

Immediately after the accident, said Mr. Eckert, Mr. Osborne had hastened away from the scene of the accident in search of state troopers, who had placed Merante under arrest. Later, some liquor had been found along the highway and Merante and his friend were charged with violating the Mullan-Gage law. A civil action had been started by Osborne for the same attorney who had represented him at the hearing on the criminal charge, and the only purpose of having a conviction against Merante, he said, was as an aid in the civil action.

As for the hearing before Justice McKenzie, said Mr. Eckert, he did not have "even a Chinaman's chance."

After listening to arguments in regard to the provision of law requiring service of papers on the justice within five days, Judge Fowler said he had previously followed a decision rendered by the county court of Yates county sustaining the section, and would be consistent by dismissing the appeal.

FIRST SMALLPOX CASE SINCE 1909

Health Board Held Special Meeting Today To Take Action To Prevent Spread of Disease—George Bush, 56 Years Old, Of Franklin Street, Quarantined.

The first case of smallpox in Kingston since 1909 caused the board of health to hold a special meeting this morning at the city hall to take steps to prevent the spread of the disease. George Bush, 56 years old, of No. 116 Franklin street, employed by the West Shore Railroad as a laborer in the store house gang, was attacked by smallpox on April 24, and feeling ill he immediately quit work, and has not worked since. The smallpox eruptions first appeared Saturday, April 28.

Wednesday evening Dr. Laidlaw, state sanitary inspector of this district, who is looking out for the health work during the absence of Dr. Frank A. Johnston, city's health officer, and Dr. O'Meara, were called into consultation by Dr. W. H. Connelly, who was caring for Bush, and they diagnosed the disease as smallpox.

This morning Dr. Laidlaw got in touch with Mayor Crane, who immediately called the members of the board of health together to consider the situation. After hearing the report of Dr. Laidlaw, the board decided that in addition to placing the Bush home on Franklin street not only under quarantine, but under guard, and arrangements were immediately made with the police department to have a guard stationed at the house.

Bush lives with his mother, who is a woman of advanced age. All those who have been in contact with Bush must be vaccinated at once. The state law requires that precaution.

Kingston has been remarkably free of smallpox. During the outbreak of the epidemic in 1909, the health board at that time adopted a policy of secrecy and as a result the disease spread rapidly. When rigorous quarantine, compulsory vaccination and full publicity was adopted the epidemic was soon stamped out. The present board of health as a result of that lesson decided to have the facts made public at once so that every resident of Kingston could take the proper precautions to avoid contracting smallpox.

Smallpox was once the most dreaded disease in the world. Only five persons out of a hundred escaped it, and about a quarter of those who took it died from its effects. Today by the process of vaccination the disease may be prevented in any community.

Smallpox is contracted by contact with the discharges of the sick or with persons and articles freshly contaminated by such discharges. It is said that very few unprotected persons fail to take smallpox if exposed.

According to the state board of health vaccination is the one simple and complete preventive against smallpox.

The health board by taking action in quarantining the house and placing it under guard believe that it will be of material assistance in preventing the spread of the disease.

This morning the board telegraphed Dr. Johnston, who is attending the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., to return immediately and take charge of the situation.

SEEK KIDNAPPED BOY IN NORTH

Only Clues, Not Very Substantial, Are That Young Alexanderson Is Either Near Canadian Border or Across It.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Schenectady, N. Y., May 3.—Early today Schenectady police were virtually convinced that the kidnappers of Vernon Alexanderson, six year old son of Ernest F. W. Alexanderson, noted radio engineer, have escaped into Canada with the child.

Word received by the authorities from Detective Van Dusen of the local force, who went to Ogdensburg late yesterday, is that he believes he is on the trail of the kidnappers. Van Dusen rushed to the northern part of the state after the police had learned that an automobile bearing a license plate issued to an Ogdensburg man, and carrying two men and a boy, had been seen in the vicinity of Ogdensburg several hours after the kidnapping.

State troopers and police today are watching every road along the border leading into Canada.

So far every clue has failed to develop anything material, but the police are almost certain that the kidnapped boy and his abductors are in hiding somewhere in the northern part of the state, if not in Canada.

While Mr. and Mrs. Alexanderson declare they know of no person who anyone should steal their child out of revenge, the authorities today are following up that angle of the mystery. Had the child been stolen for a ransom, the police feel that a letter would have been received by this time by the parents, naming the price upon which the boy would be returned.

Police refused to discuss the details of the clue leading to Ogdensburg except to say that it might lead to something "good" within a few hours.

Although everything seems to indicate that the kidnappers made their way toward the northern part of the state, the local authorities are scouring every nook and corner of the city to make sure that the boy is not being held captive here.

It was reported early today that the reward might be increased to $5,000 later in the day. A few hours after the child was stolen the father offered a reward of $1,000 and later that was duplicated by the city.

The east will be composed of the members of the senior class, by whom the play is being given. Mr. Byer is coaching them and under his direction they are beginning to act out their parts realistically. The east was picked from about seventy-five people who tried out, so the best of talent is the result.

The east at present is as follows: The Prince of Wales, (their apparent to the throne of England).

Joseph Kelly (Princess of Wales).

Richard Brinsley Sheridan, (Lafayette).

Salome, (Rochester).

Reginald Courtenay, (Napoleon to the Beau).

WILBUR CROSS LIT WEDNESDAY

There was still another of the series of burning crosses Wednesday night. The cross was erected on the old Phinney property on the Wilbur road. Residents of Wilbur called up police headquarters and Officer Paton was sent to the scene but found no one around the burning cross. The police are of the opinion that the burning crosses are the work of several young men who are trying to frighten residents with the belief that a Ku Klux Klan is being organized here.

Among the sporting element bets are being made as to the location of the next cross.

Who Has Burning Sore Feet, Corns or Bunions?

Here is Wonderful News!

"For many years the callouses on my feet, the bunions, and the corns have nearly driven me crazy," says Mrs. Anna Beckman. "I tried all kinds of things without relief, hearing about the quick relief and wonderful results obtained by dancers and athletes who used Gypsy Foot Relief, my husband brought home a box. I used it a few times as directed, and to my surprise, the bunions and corns stopped, and the callouses just peeled off in my fingers, leaving the skin smooth. The soft corns between my toes seemed to fade away, and now I feel as if I had a pair of new feet. Before I used Gypsy Foot Relief, my feet were constantly swollen, and now I can wear shoes as a size smaller with perfect comfort."

NOTE: Gypsy Foot Relief, mentioned by Mrs. Beckman, is a secret from the doctor. Applied in a few minutes, it cures a few minutes later the bunions, corns, and burning feet, callouses, and all blemishes disappear as if by magic. So true—no holes, no plaster, no bandages, no use of foot baths, nor inconvenience. So wonderful are the reports from users of Gypsy Foot Relief, that druggists willing to take the risk, do it, and it is sold in 25 successful results in any case. It is sold in this city by all good druggists.

IN LINEN FROCKS

Simple Lines Feature the New Outfit for Women's Summer Wear.

Various style types are shown in linen dresses for midsummer occasions, and although the general outline of these frocks is simplicity itself, a generous selection of numbers are distinctive because of their trimming. Drawn work, yarn embroidery, silk embroidery and linen stitcheries are alternately used on these dresses.

Stitched embroidery of oriental effect is extensively used on models of tailored street appearance and fine silk embroidery trims the daintier afternoon frocks of linen. Yarn embroidery is most effective and drawn work reflects the popularity for anything hand-made. Eponge is another wash material used in the developing of tailored frocks, and some printed patterns are to be found in this group.

The kerchief mode, which has so far been confined to silk expression, is incorporated in the new trimming treatments. Some very trim gingham dresses have large organdie collars in kerchief effect and it gives an entirely new appearance to this crisp fabric, which is generally fluted. Flocked volles seem to summarize the practical needs of cool wash dresses, and following the styles of smart summer skirts many of them are made with long girdled bodices and knife-plated skirts. The very fact that the majority of them are brown and dark blue means that they will require few washings in a season.

One of the very good three-piece wash dresses is made of an eoru eponge with bodice of fine tucked voile. The double tiered skirt and similar style features are to be noted.

The Knitted Cap Is Latest Paris Fashion

The Riviera, writes a Paris fashion observer, is having a big craze for knitted goods. Knitted suits, blouses and sweaters in combination of wool and silk and in all-silk. These are both hand-made and machine-made. In some of the latter the patterns look like a fabric, a beautiful brocade as it were, so cleverly is the pattern thrown to the surface.

Most of the new motor wraps are in the form of big knitted capes. It has gotten to the point on the Riviera that a woman is really not smartly dressed for informal day occasions and for out-of-door sports unless the garment she wears is knitted. Half of the popularity of this style is owing to the fact that it packs so easily and is always ready to wear and the other 50 per cent is represented in its beautiful colorings. Women dare to wear bright yellow, bright coral, red and green garments fashioned by the needle and the hook who would not presume to wear the same color in a woven fabric.

Many Nice Things for the Summer Wardrobe

It is evident that there will be any number of beautiful but inexpensive fabrics from which women may choose their summer wardrobes, notes a fashion authority. The only difficulty is in avoiding the eccentric, for designers, both French and American, in their constant struggle for something new, have often been led into extreme and trying effects. But if a woman has taste she can, from the great quantity of new things shown, be sure of possessing becoming frocks and flattering hats. So it is worth while spending time searching for the best from among these new things.

Scheme That Was Widely Heralded Some Few Years Ago Has Gone Into the Discard.

Statement appears at intervals in the press heralding new ways of making rain, preventing rain or forestalling the disastrous effects of storms. These ideas are not new. Ten years or more ago certain countries in Europe were thrown into excitement, reflected in their newspapers, over the possibility of a scheme called hail-shooting. It was believed that by shooting bombs into the air before an oncoming storm it could be dissipated, thus averting consequent destruction to crops from rain or hail. Contrary to the opinions of the best meteorologists a good deal of money was spent in experimenting with hail-shooting, but little is ever heard of it now.

Illiteracy of the Nations.

I pick up one of those encyclopaedic books and turn to the pages which tell about the illiteracy of various countries. writes "Gerard" in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

I find that in Spain 50 persons over ten years of age out of every 100 cannot read at all.

Gleaning over the record for other Hispanic countries I see that in Argentina 54 out of 100 are illiterate; in Chile, 51; in Colombia, 53; Mexico, 70; Costa Rica, 90, and Guatemala, 92.

In that Hispanic sister, Portugal, 90 in 100 persons cannot read, and in Brazil, largely colonized by Portuguese, 85 per cent of the population is illiterate.

How could the "Hispanic masses," who are unable to read anything, "recognize and appreciate" literary genius?

In the United States only five in 100 persons above ten years are illiterate

And in Philadelphia there are but four illiterates for every 100 inhabitants.

American masses may not exult over Bonavente, but they still enjoy a slight edge on the "Hispanic masses," since they are able to read if they want to.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 3, 1923.

Britain has cut her taxes about $250,000,000. The Republican party lost that with a cut of $800,000,000. The Democrats "point with pride" to England's action, and are silent on Republican action.

President Harding does not believe in government operation of utilities but that does not mean that he is going to throw away the property of the taxpayers. Referring to the merchant marine situation, he declared in his New York speech: "If we cannot sell, we will operate, and operate aggressively, until Congress inhibits." The president has plenty of authority under present legislation to do that. He has refused to be discouraged by the success of the Democratic filibuster against the ship bill in the senate, and his determination to go ahead with the development of an American merchant marine should command the admiration of all Americans.

We read that Jeff Davis, "king of the hoboes," is going around telling Ohio school children: "Go home, grab mom with a half Nelson and give her a Rodolph Valentino, brush the spider webs away and say, 'Mom, there are too many boys and girls getting into trouble; don't you worry about me! Promise me you will go home and give mother the biggest bunch of loving she ever got in her life.'" The dispatch says this does "a lot of good," but the teachers of English are no doubt of a different opinion.

BICYCLES IN BRITAIN.

American lovers of motorcars will be surprised to hear that the Manchester (England) Guardian, discussing the merits of the different types of vehicles for holiday purposes, decides in favor of the bicycle. It points out that the range of a walker at a week end is very limited; he must take a train to go far from home. The motorist may range far and wide but lacks in ability to observe; he "goes so far and so easily that he sees little but general outlines and contours." The bicycle rider, therefore strikes the "happy medium of holiday travel." He can run fifty or seventy miles a day, get benefit from the exercise, and really see the country he travel over.

This is logical enough as far as it goes, although based on the assumption that the main object is to see the country, which is more than doubtful in the majority of cases. It also leaves out of account the physical inertia, not to say indolence, of the "tired business man" which renders the strenuous and continuous pedaling on a bicycle distinctly unattractive. The Guardian's article indicates that, as a vehicle for holiday making, the bicycle enjoys the greatest popularity in England. But when the automobile becomes less expensive in that country there is likely to be a change, notwithstanding the typical Englishman's love of physical exercise. At any rate it is unquestionable that the automobile will remain the popular favorite in America.

HISTORY AND PATRIOTISM.

Authors of American history textbooks that have been put under the ban in several states take the position that a proper history for school children should teach the whole truth and not give an account from the American point of view. Those gentlemen who say of the fact that it is as much the function of a school history to inculcate patriotism in the students as it is to tell them of the facts of history. That need not be done at the sacrifice of truth, but it does require that stirring events in the history of American history should be emphasized and described in such a way as to make the reader's heart thrill with pride that as a citizen of the United States.

Some writers of American history, particularly since the great war, not only ignore that fact but in their zeal to present both sides of the controversies culminating in the Revolution and the War of 1812, they omit the names of American heroes who saving the names of their British opponents, and throw into a favorable light the British contentions while casting disparagement on those of the Americans. While such textbooks may not contain direct falsification of fact, they should not be countenanced for a moment in a school inspired by ideals of Americanism. Our school authorities all over the country are awakening to the danger, and numerous investigations have resulted in the condemnation of some of the worst pieces of alien propaganda. Let us keep constantly in our minds the warning of George Washington: "Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence, I conjure you to believe me, fellow citizens, the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake; since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of republican government."

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Please tell me the name of a little turtle I have, with a beautiful deep pink spot each side of the head. The skin is a sort of jade green and pale yellow striped effect. The shell has a border of sort of round-shaped scales but the main part of the top shell has much bigger, long-shaped scales.

2. Were our poultry birds ever wild?

3. Can a fish possibly give out an electric shock?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Is it true they ever use cormorants to fish with abroad? In the Orient it is still done, cormorants being caught young and trained. A cord is kept on the bird's leg, and the bird is tossed into water from a boat. It makes several plunges, catching small fishes, which stay in its throat instead of being swallowed thanks to a metal ring placed about the bird's throat. As soon as several fishes have been lodged in the throat, the human owner pulls the bird to the boat, takes out its catch, and sets the cormorant to work again, after giving it one fish as reward.

2. What is the longest time any wild animal can live?

No satisfactory answer can be given. The span of life depends largely on luck in keeping out of the way of an enemy. If you mean what animals normally have long lives, elephants are credited with living "a century or more", crows and ravens to "great age", and the giant tortoises of the Galapagos Islands of the Pacific are believed to have fully a hundred years, with legends of having lived four hundred.

3. Do flies do any good?

In a natural world before man upset the balance of nature, flies and various insects were necessary cleaners and scavengers, to break up and digest decaying animal matter. Artificial conditions caused by man have supplied the insects with unnatural abundance of food, encouraging them to breed in numbers where they become a pest, or even a dangerous germ-carrier. As we live today, flies do only harm.

HI-Y BOYS HEAR OF ENGINEERING

The newly elected officers of the Hi-Y assumed their duties at the meeting Wednesday night. The attendance was small, but those who were there spent as pleasant an hour as ever. Next week there is to be a special program for the girls.

C. R. Herman, instructor in mechanical subjects at the high school, was the speaker. His talk was on the advantages of engineering. Engineering usually brings to the mind the idea of civil engineering. There are really six different kinds of engineering, civil, mechanical, industrial, mining, chemical and agricultural. Engineering is one of the biggest fields today. Its opportunities are unlimited. A man can go into engineering and work himself as high as he has a will to do. The wages of big engineers are higher than those of most other big men. The engineer is the man in the manufacturing world of today. The heads of nearly all the big concerns are engineers, trained in their work. They are all demanding large wages and their work is interesting and inviting. They are the men who are successful.

There is another thing in engineering that is interesting. An engineer has more schooling than other college students. They are drilled in all things, especially upon mathematics, science and English. The foundation given in college is so extensive that it almost includes the requirements for graduation from an arts and science school. Mr. Herman said that he had found out that his training in engineering had enabled him to take up a work that was different. As a teacher, he could take charge of a different kind of class every period. With but a little more study, he could have permission to teach even academic subjects. These personal references were to show the extent of engineering and the study of engineering.

Engineering is interesting to the person who is interested in it. To like engineering, the fellow must enjoy mathematics. If he does not care for mathematics he might as well drop the idea of being an engineer, for that is the greater part of an engineer's work. If he likes mathematics, he will like engineering and can make good at it if he works. There are heads of concerns making from a few thousand dollars to one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars per year. These men, however, are the ones who have labored hard, worked in one single line for years, and finally got to the top of the ladder. There is a staff of men under whom, all of them demanding good pay.

There are men, engineers who are not making good because they are not interested in the work. However, the broad education needed for engineering gives the one who has studied it a start in various lines. The engineering field carries with it some great experiences. It brings one into contact with all classes and all conditions, and the more practical experience a fellow gets, the better, for that is what counts in the making of an engineer. There are some companies that take boys out of their other departments and instruct them in the engineering line, rather than taking school trained men, for these boys who show an ability for the work are usually as good as and often better than the college graduates, because their work is experience in the practical lines, while the college men have only the theory. However, there is something in a college education if one wishes to work along with it. More than training is an education, too. Mr. Herman told of an old man with whom he was working one summer. The old man found out he was a college man. It was expected that some sarcastic remark on college men would follow, for the old fellow was none too partial to the "upper set." Instead, he showed an appreciation of college, although not of the appreciation most men have of it. "Stick to it, lad," he said, "your education is the only thing another can't buy, beg, steal or borrow." An education is always ours, and it will help us in whatever field we go in engineering, above all is a good education helpful, for it gives a foundation upon which to build many careers.

HOW BODY GROWS AND WORKS

Small Glands Which Appear of Little Moment Are Really of the Highest Importance.

Of all the fascinating mysteries connected with human life there is none of more absorbing interest, nor more full of possibilities for future development for the good of mankind, than the discovery of the forces which guide and control the growth of the body and regulate its activities in regard to appetite, feelings and emotion. Gradually we are learning something about a number of small glands, each of which makes a special material that is poured into the blood, whence it exerts a profound influence on these activities. Indeed, so powerful is the influence of some of these glands, small as most of them are, that their loss will result in death. They are intimately concerned with such questions as being tall or short, fat or thin, the growth and texture of hair and bone, the regulation of the sex functions and maturity, and the changes which take place in the body when one is worried, anxious or afraid. Practical use is already being made of the little that is known about them. But there is much danger that ignorance and speculation may lead to exploitation and charlatanism at the expense of the uninformed, the best preventive for which is a plain statement of the truth. Doctor Cannon, one of the pioneers in this field, tells in English what is known and adds that these "glands exercise such potent influences on our efficiency and well-being that when we know how they operate we shall probably be in a position to determine the manifestations of our characters and possibly influence our behavior, modify the growth of children and of lower animals, and order the rate of nature of chemical change in our bodies. We are still far from attaining these ends. In the presence of both the overenthusiastic and the overconservative, the attitude which is certain to be right in the end is that of demanding rigorously the well-ascertained facts as a basis for both critical judgment and for hope.

Reason Aided by Education.
Be sure you are right, then go ahead. Be good advice only to the man who can quickly and directly reason what is right. Good reasoning is aided by education, which parents should supply their children through support of our public schools.—Grit.

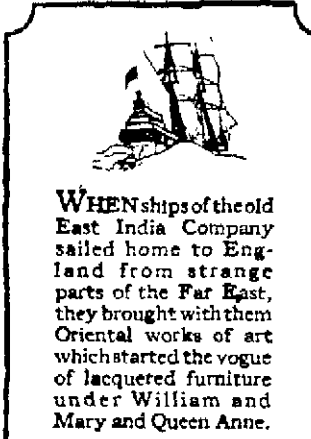

The Quality Remains Long After the Price has been Forgotten

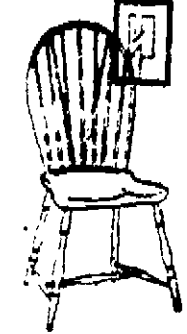

GOOD furniture is a profitable investment. We hold no brief for "high prices," but we do, most emphatically, declare for furniture that will justify the money that is put into it.

And, since furniture is bought only at intervals of many years, one should not be dazzled by mere surface gaudiness and a low price. "Cheap" furniture is rank extravagance. In choosing furniture be sure to look carefully for those inward qualities which are lasting. "The quality remains long after the price has been forgotten."

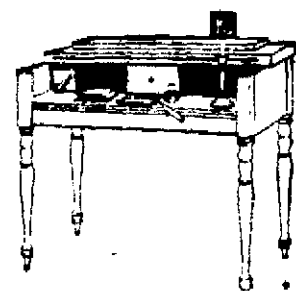

WHEN ships of the old East India Company sailed home to England from strange parts of the Far East, they brought with them Oriental works of art which started the vogue of lacquered furniture under William and Mary and Queen Anne.

Babe & Mrs. Ruth, Dolores Dixon

When Dolores Dixon, a pretty New York girl, entered suit for $50,000, Babe Ruth, home-run king of the New York Yankees, was the father of her unborn child. Ruth, backed by his loyal wife, denied the charge, asserting he had never even seen the girl and that he was the victim of blackmail. When the suit was about to come to trial, Ruth's attorney learned that a man who had formerly lived in an apartment where the girl had a room could bare the blackmail plot. When the attorney got an order from the court to examine the man before the trial the girl hastily withdrew her suit. Ruth has placed the matter in the hands of the district attorney of New York, asking prosecution of all involved.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is Multisified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Multisified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Multisified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multisified coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multisified.

"PINKS" LOGIC NOT CONVINCING

Miss Schwed Shows Fallacies in Arguments of Those Who Preach Socialism Through Ignorance or Self Interest.

There was a good-sized audience of thoughtful and inquiring people at the High School Auditorium on Wednesday evening to hear Miss Schwed lecture on "The Conversion of a Parlor Socialist." under the patronage of the Junior League of Kingston.

The Rev. Frank B. Seeley was to have introduced the speaker but being unavoidably detained that honor fell to Howard Chipp, who said he accepted the invitation the more willingly because the subject was most timely and of pressing interest. He said that in spite of her German sounding name, Miss Schwed was born in Alabama and so was indeed a daughter of the soil. Mr. Chipp said that she had spent much time, thought and work on the subject on which she was to speak, and he knew of no topic more important today. With the Allies we have overcome the external foe, but today there lurks a still more dangerous enemy who works in the darkness; insidiously, artfully, cunningly, an enemy who is spreading the propaganda of a doctrine subversive of our institutions and constitution, which is striking at the very roots of civilization. Said Mr. Chipp: Our life and liberty are seldom jeopardized, but property is attacked. He had found in all of his reading on the subject about socialism of all kinds that there was one fundamental underlying principle and that was to take away from the man who had earned and saved or whose ancestors had earned and saved, part or all he might have and give it to one who had not earned nor saved and who was not capable of earning. Mr. Chipp closed his introduction by heartily endorsing the National Association for Constitutional Government, of which David Jayne Hill is president and for which Miss Schwed is field secretary.

Miss Schwed went straight to her subject, telling how, fifteen years ago she met some fascinating radicals—practically all of them make it their business to be fascinating—who early sought to undermine her faith in the Constitution of the United States. She even grew to think, from her acquaintance with these radicals, that Socialism was a beneficent possibility. Now the Socialist knows that there is no success for Socialism except where private property belonging to one man is taken and given to the other fellow, and where the Constitution perishes. The parlor Socialist knows neither of these facts.

It was in New York city that Miss Schwed made her first adventure into parlor Socialism. Here among other of their ilk she met two clever men whom we will call Mr. Smith and Mr. Brown. With enough ridicule to be stimulating, these new friends asked her if she wanted to be a reactionary, an old fogie, in fact of the bourgeoisie. She did not think she did so then they asked her if she did not want a broader vision, to become more open-minded to learn to see every side of a question. Later she decided that there were many questions she did not care to learn the various sides of; for instance she was not eager to get a murderer's various viewpoints as to why he found murder attractive. When these acquaintances—commensals—were asking her these questions and making light of the old-fashioned Constitution she did not know that before that Constitution was written there had been two most unsuccessful experiments in Socialism in New England and Virginia. But she did ask them what it meant to be "Bourgeoisie," a title carrying their contempt. They told her the "Bourgeoisie" were the rich or middle rich. But she denied being rich, telling them that having lost her property she was going to work. Then they delightedly informed her that in that case she was one of the "Proletariat," the working people of the world, who would one day rule the world and would then stop believing in the Constitution.

The acquaintances further asked her if she did not believe in shorter hours of labor, higher wages, that the rich should be less rich and the poor less poor, with a square deal for all? Of course she did, but later she learned to know that those were simply humanitarian measures, not socialism. Then they gave her books to read. H. G. Wells' "New Worlds for Old" (a pink paradise, lovely but vague); another book on "The Religion of the Democrat" by a professor of the University of Chicago whom she knew. This, too, was vague but clever.

Miss Schwed told of being given a copy of the Communist Manifesto, long a secret publication, to read and wherein she found many strange words, including "economic determination," which worked out would result in socialistic revolution. Then there was "expropriation," and one of her socialist friends calmed her fears by telling her that after all she had nothing to fear from her wish to see revolution rather than evolution. However, she later learned that some of the above mentioned phrases from Carl Marx's teachings meant, she illustrated by saying that there were some of the Red Guard stationed near here, they would send in some of their number to the meeting during which they would object to remarks by the speaker, causing disturbance which would be resented, starting trouble. That would offer a screen for expropriation acts whereby a valuable necklace or diamond ring, etc., would be "expropriated." Naturally American men would not stand for such treatment of their women and revolution would follow. The speaker had seen such things happen.

Finally Miss Schwed went to hear Emma Goldman, certainly an exceedingly persuasive speaker, talk. Right here she warned her hearers that they need never think that by attending any such socialistic, really anarchistic meetings they were doing anything to Americanize the socialists. The Americans rarely know their own constitution regarding their own country, while the socialists know our constitution to the bone, for the very purpose of picking flaws, misrepresenting it and insidiously undermining it. And they know the philosophy of the American people equally well. They know how to make their audience self-satisfied by giving them the impression that they are thinking out things for themselves while they are in truth accepting the statements of the socialists the very art of propaganda.

Out of what they were pleased to call a "Salon," composed mostly of Russian socialists, Miss Schwed learned to read between the lines, that they are working earnestly against religion; against morality; against family life; against capital and militarism; against the constitution. They say there is no God. Morality is old fashioned and childish. They would put free love in the place of marriage. Capital should be taken from the capitalists and given to the proletariat. The world should disarm. (The pacifists are great helpers of the anarchists) because then the socialist revolution would come the sooner. It was equally evident how great an advantage they would have with the constitution scrapped. All this Miss Schwed learned little by little and rejected, but still considered as only a part of the terroristic wing of socialism; not socialism as she supposed it was on the whole.

Miss Schwed next told of her further enlightenment during the World War. Bolshevism came into being and she frankly told her associates that she did not like Bolshevism, which in the beginning was disguised as pacifism calling to mind the "Peace Ship" and trip abroad by a Bolshevik woman. Again all of the old arguments about our old-fashioned thinking and believing were presented, but now with the appeal to our boys and their parents to keep us out of war.

Another famous socialist whom Miss Schwed heard was Debs, whom at the time she considered at least sincere, but whom she has since decided is not sincere after all. But she was beginning to have her eyes opened. Throughout the war the Bolsheviks were by organized effort

APPEAL FOR THE NEAR EAST

In accordance with a request from Lt. Gov. Lunn, the mayor has requested me to organize a committee for the collection of clothing for the women and children of the Near East.

The lieutenant governor in his letter says: "The terrible suffering of the men, women and children of the Near East on account of the lack of clothing has been very forcibly brought to my attention, and I have consented to take up this matter unofficially in New York state and appeal to the citizens to help me raise a large quantity of old garments to relieve some of the suffering in that stricken land."

I would appreciate it if you would assist me by appointing a mayor's committee to have charge of this appeal in your community. The campaign will be short and will require but little time. Full instructions will be sent to the chairman of the committee which you appoint.

The clothing committee is now being organized, and the names of members will be published later, and a meeting of the committee to decide on methods of collection will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building at 4 p. m., Tuesday, May 8. Meanwhile, will not the charitable minded citizens of Kingston collect whatever warm clothing they can spare in anticipation of the call of collectors. It is proposed to begin the collection on May 15.

furthering the slacker movement wherever possible but so skillfully that for long it was not recognized. Again Miss Schwed showed how Socialism was working to create dissatisfaction and revolution in the labor world, inveighing against all employers and property rights; advocating to the laborers the killing of the goose that was laying their golden egg, but doing it all most artfully. The speaker knew first hand of the socialistic experiment in North Dakota and of its final smash and described the same somewhat. But the fullest extent of the present horror from within was revealed by the speaker when she told of the way the radical women, the one-time parlor socialists, were instructed to worm their way—and they are doing it—into our women's missionary societies, our women's clubs, etc., for women are especially susceptible to socialism as presented in its early stages. It was eye-opening. Miss Schwed vigorously warned her hearers that to be neutral was to help the socialist radicals cause without any doubt. And her warning was equally emphatic against the speaker who says "I am not a socialist, but" for that "but" would always prove to be a flat denial of the statement preceding it.

Considering that Bolshevism is socialism worked out to its logical conclusion, Miss Schwed went on to tell about the "Third International" with its millions of propagandists in Russia and its millions and institutions of learning with their "advanced" teachings. The speaker also passed about in the audience a well worn copy of the International's literary organ, almost impossible to secure a copy of. The trouble is that, according to Miss Schwed, the Americans won't study their history, won't seriously investigate these matters that are working so viciously and secretly to undermine our government and our religion and our homes. The socialists do study.

Finally Miss Schwed told her hearers to beware of any one not sincerely and positively opposed to socialism as there is no middle ground for socialism today. She considered it high time that the socialists be kept from educating our children in any way, for as the child is educated so will the coming generation of men and women think and act. And she further informed the audience that they should not think that socialism was only a Russian movement; it started in Russia but is a world movement, and it is being created aided by such well meaning but really extremely dangerous "pinks" as young Gerhard who came thousands to help along parlor socialism, the seed-bred for something much more vicious.

American common sense is needed, and American alertness to detect any vestige of Socialism and American education in all of the teachings of our Constitution which has withstood the test of time as no other similar instrument has.

After the lecture there were some questions asked and not a little discussion entered into showing that Miss Schwed had pretty well "got ten under the skin" of her Kingston audience.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COW AND SUNSETS

"Now it is really useful," said Mrs. Cow, "and I had to tell you that."

"But, now, also, now, I won't do that."

"What is a reputation?" asked Miss Cow.

"And what are you talking about? I don't know that word."

"Of course I know a good many words. I know the word 'reputation' and I know that more than one thing is called a reputation."

"I know those two words, or perhaps you'd only call that one word all told."

"Then I know the word 'pull' and I know the word 'milk', and I know the word 'dog' and I know the word 'grass'."

"I know the word 'buy' and I know the word 'farm' and I know the word 'car'."

"Now, now, now, come to it, if it is, I know quite a lot of words."

"Really, I am a fast learner, aren't you?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Cow, "but now And I am willing to admit it and give you praise."

"But still I seem to know a word you don't know."

"Ah yes," said Miss Cow, "I don't know the meaning of that word you used. Do explain it to me."

"Reputation is a word," said Mrs. Cow, "that is, of course, if one has a fine reputation."

"If one has a bad reputation then it is very bad."

"Why can't you say very bad or very fine, and have out reputation?"

"I have a good reputation," altogether?" asked Miss Cow. "It seems a waste of good cow time to add another word in there and make it all so puzzling."

"Well," said Mrs. Cow, "the word reputation is needed in there. I couldn't just say what I had to say without using it."

"A good reputation means," she went on, "that the creature who has the good reputation is thought well of and people have a good opinion of that creature."

"Reputation is the repute or opinion which has gone the rounds about one. Now it is fine to have good opinions about a fine nature for one, and it isn't so fine when they're bad."

"These opinions are often spoken about you, so, and so a creature with a good reputation has nice things spoken about her and one with a bad reputation has either dreadful things said about him or people shake their heads at the mere mention of that name."

"Now I have a good reputation. I have never given milk that isn't good."

"And so if I hadn't that fine reputation I might be tempted to give poor milk today."

"Why?" asked Miss Cow. "Now, now, pray tell me why?"

"Because," said Mrs. Cow, "some people passed by today when I was grazing in the field and they said."

"Look at that fat cow in the meadow where that cow is. What a beautiful scenery it is all around."

"Yes," said another, "and from that meadow and just here one can always see the most beautiful of scenery. Yes, it is quite a deserved part of the country."

"It seems a pity that only a cow can see such beautiful scenery. And what does a cow care about sunsets?"

"That is what they said, and it made me very angry. How do they know what I think of sunsets? Can they read my cow mind?"

"How do they know but what I love sunsets? How do they know but what I'd love to give up my job of giving milk and just gaze at sunsets all the rest of my life?"

"They don't know. They were just talking and they just felt like saying that. I don't know anything about beauty because I was only a cow."

"Why is it cows like to live in meadows and not in apartment houses? I'm not going to tell all the reasons but it shows that we're better off in the country where the beauty is."

"And it is very well to be for all they know, but my cow mind and my cow eyes are just as appreciative as theirs are."

"They don't know about cows. And even if they're partly speaking the truth at least we cows don't shut ourselves up the way humans do."

"No, we stay out in the beautiful open fields and get far closer to nature than they do, now, now."

GAS BUGGIES—Things Have Changed Since Father Was a Boy.

The KITCHEN CABINET

By 1923, Washington Post (1923)

We are not here to pay, to dream, to drift. We have hard work to do, and loads to lift. We are not the struggle, to a bit, to a bit, to a bit. —Maurice D. Babcock.

WHAT TO EAT

The hostess who enjoys entertaining will find helpful suggestions in the following menu: The average hostess who entertains finds the courses which may be prepared before, leaving her free at the last, most satisfactory. The beginning may be a fruit cocktail, or hors d'oeuvre, prepared with bread cut in star form; on each point is placed a different kind of savory morsel, with a bit of pimento for the center. Chopped olives, anchovy, chow chow, or any other relish liked.

The next comes bouillon or cream (of "anything") soup, with wafers, croutons or very thin and very small sandwiches.

Now comes the main dish, which may be lamb chops, tenderloin with mushroom sauce, potato croquettes, all served on the plate, with a few spoonfuls of the very small string beans, well buttered.

The solid course may be tomatoes cut in halves, filled with Neufchatel cheese and topped with a thin slice of green pepper, placed on lettuce, and a French dressing passed.

The dessert may be maple ice cream or plain vanilla cream, topped with maple syrup, poured over it quite hot; coffee and sponge cake, or little fancy cakes may be served with the dessert.

The above provides a meal which may be prepared largely in advance, and the foods are usually found in the market most of the year.

An emergency dish for an unexpected meal may be prepared by using party shells, which may be found in almost any lake shop, filled with creamed fish, chicken, sweetbreads, mushrooms or oysters, any one of which is delicious.

Accompany this dish with a vegetable or two, or one vegetable and a crisp salad of watercress, or lettuce with any snappy, highly-seasoned dressing.

Where ice and frozen dishes of various kinds may be quickly obtained from the market, a dessert is not a dish to worry about.

The cleanest wash in the whole street

The cleanest wash in her neighborhood—every woman is determined to have it!

This good-natured rivalry over the tub happens regularly every Monday. On every street, in every town, the competition goes on.

When the line is full and you can honestly feel that your wash is the best looking wash far and wide, your satisfaction is deep. And rightly so.

You can make sure of this satisfaction every Monday from now on—

A wonderful new soap has revolutionized washday.

With this new soap—Rinso—all the strain and ache of rubbing is gone for good—soaking takes the place of rubbing!

The Rinso suds gently loosen dirt without hurting a single thread. Only where dirt has been actually ground in—at neckbands, cuff edges and the like—will you need to rub lightly. For this light rubbing, sprinkle on a little dry Rinso. See how quickly the stubborn dirt disappears.

Just dissolve Rinso in boiling water and pour it into your tub which you have half filled with lukewarm water. Then put in your clothes. If the suds stand up after the clothes are in, you have used enough Rinso.

Let the clothes soak an hour or two—overnight if you wish. You will be delighted at the way the dirt rinses right out.

YANK GOLFERS AMAZE BRITONS

Willing, Gardner and Outmet Are Three of Four Leaders in Contest For St. George's Cup.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Sandwich, England, May 3.—With three Americans in the first four leaders, English critics expressed fear of the ultimate outcome as the final round of the St. George's challenge cup golf tournament began today. The trophy has never fallen into the hands of an alien golfer in all the years it has been in competition but the British did not conceal their apprehension that it would be won by an American at the end of the 36 hole journey today.

Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, Ore., who topped the field yesterday with a 74; Bob Gardner, of Chicago and Francis Outmet, of Boston, are believed to have the best chance of ultimate victory, barring an upset. This may be furnished by Roger Wethered, reckoned the best amateur in Great Britain. He had a 76 yesterday and stands a royal chance of coming home in front. Cyril Tolley, former British champion, may also furnish a surprise. He is always dangerous.

The Americans, however, have furnished the sensation to date. Their play in yesterday's round amazed the English and press experts today spoke in glowing terms of the Americans' style, predicting that they would shine in the championship next week, unless hampered by unfavorable weather.

Are All-Day
Shoes

IT'S not hard to find a pair of shoes that are comfortable as you walk downtown in the morning, fresh and unfatigued, but it's quite a different matter to find a pair that will be equally easy on your feet after a long, tiring day.

Cantilevers are specially designed to give support that will prevent extreme foot-fatigue, and for this reason will be as comfortable at night as when you first put them on.

Comfort and foot well-being are the most important results of wearing Cantilevers, but they have the added advantage of looking smart for tailored wear at all times. The flexible Cantilever arch, that moves with every movement of your feet, will take you unperceived of wearing shoes at all times for the comforting assurance of being well-shod.

LIBRARY INSTITUTE IS HELD HERE

Efficiency Methods Under General Discussion With Sherman Williams of State Department of Education a Speaker.

An Institute for education in the vicinity of Kingston was held at the Kingston City Library on Tuesday, both morning and afternoon. At the morning session, Sherman Williams of the Department of Education, Albany, N. Y., was the first speaker. Dr. Williams' message was to the effect that today the successful librarian may not be satisfied with just following the set routine of her work. She must have a vision of what the library can bring to the people, young and old, in the days ahead and she must be able to venture forth into wider fields of activity as the need arises. Dr. Williams was followed by Miss Inger, library organizer of Albany, who gave a very valuable talk on the more technical phases of library work. The last speaker in the morning was Miss Elizabeth M. Smith, director of libraries, also of Albany, who showed the necessity for careful statistical work in the library. Superintendent Michael then invited those present to luncheon at the City Hotel.

At the afternoon session, Miss Smith and Miss Inger were the chief speakers. Miss Herbert, Kingston's librarian, telling how to get the right books to the right people at the right time of day.

Toilet Specialist.

Miss C. D. Smith the well-known Toilet Goods Specialist here this week will give free massage by appointment and demonstrate the famous Caru Nome and Juneau toilet requisites.

Every woman is keenly interested in the subject of retaining her good looks, but for too few women appreciate what the term "good looks" really implies. So many make the mistake of thinking that it is primarily a matter of the features. Of course, the features do play a prominent part. A finely shaped nose, well-formed ears, well-placed eyes, and well-rounded, yet firm, mouth and chin are highly to be desired, but these alone do not give the face distinction.

The real chief characteristic of good looks, or personal beauty is far more subtle. It lies in the skin. For the skin can make or mar the most perfect features and a beautiful skin will lend distinction to the plainest features.

The proper care of a woman's skin is a subject too little understood. Some women do not appreciate its importance at all, while others, much realizing the charm of a beautiful skin do not know how to retain its clear texture, the firmness and the rosy bloom of youth. They are fearful of self-treatment and shun all toilet preparations designed to aid the skin for fear of encountering ones which might be harmful. And probably most women who give any thought to their personal beauty, and few do not, are apt to associate the retaining of a beautiful skin with the necessity of frequent visits to the so-called Beauty Shops found in so many metropolitan centers.

Any woman, as a matter of fact, may possess a beautiful skin who will take the time and pains to care for her skin systematically, in logical fashion, and who will use only preparations which she can be certain are harmless and beneficial.

To obtain easy self-treatment, to demonstrate by actual free massage in the home and explain the characteristics and properties of the leading line of toilet preparations used by women of refinement today is the purpose of the visit here this week of Miss Schaff, the well-known Toilet Goods Specialist of Boston.

She has been engaged especially for this purpose by McBride Drug Stores Inc., proprietors of the local Royal Store. Miss Schaff who is not only well versed in all the aids to beauty, but who is also with the manufacture of the preparations she specializes in, will give you free massage in the home to any Kingston lady making an appointment for this with the Royal Store. She will demonstrate the uses and properties of different facial creams and other toilet preparations famous today under the well known names of Caru Nome and Juneau, such as creams, toilet waters, face powders, etc.

Miss Schaff's services are absolutely free. She is herself a woman of fine personal appearance and charm, an authority in her subject and comes to Kingston with very strong recommendation from other towns and cities where she has given similar demonstrations.

In addition to individual massage treatment, Miss Schaff has made a specialty of appearing before women's clubs and is open for a limited number of engagements while here. We understand she will be here for only a single week so the brief word of introduction should be sufficient suggestion to those women who may wish to avail themselves of this rather unusual opportunity.

Sincerely,

KINGSTON'S PART IN WORLD WAR

Information Which so Desired by City Historian Clearwater in Order to Preserve Our Record Properly.

The legislature of the state of New York just prior to the beginning of the World War provided that each town and city of the state should have an historian, the historians of the towns to be appointed by the town boards, and those of the cities by the several mayors, all of the historians to serve without compensation, the office being made a purely honorary one, the duties to be discharged by citizens of the several localities who were selected because of their willingness to perform a public service without compensation.

Judge Clearwater was appointed by Mayor Canfield, the historian of Kingston, and re-appointed to that office by Mayor Crane. Several times through the newspapers of the city, he has requested the data which appears in the letter he presented to the common council Tuesday evening, a letter which is explicit, and states with brevity and clearness precisely the data which the state and its several political divisions are extremely desirous of securing for the use of the historians and generations of the future. The judge is of the opinion that while Kingston possibly may be surpassed by other American cities as an industrial center, there is no city in the country that surpasses it in patriotic sacrifice, achievement and willingness at all times to do more than its full share in every effort to maintain and perpetuate the great fundamental principles enunciated by the founders of the American republic.

The judge's letter is as follows: To The Honorable, The Common Council of the City of Kingston, Gentlemen:

With my recently filed annual report to the state historian, I included a list of the men of Kingston who served in the World War, together with a photograph of the bronze tablet commemorating their services erected at the city hall.

Profoundly to my regret, I was compelled to state that my repeated appeals for the photographs of these men and a written statement of their experiences had been unanswered.

It is not needed I should say that unless this data speedily is obtained, it never will be secured; in aid of my efforts to get it not only for the archives of the city, but those of the state, I appeal to the individual members of your honorable body because you more closely are in touch with the members of the families to which these men belong than other city officials can be.

What I desire for the city is—
a. A photograph of every man who volunteered, enlisted or served in the world war.

b. A statement of the commands and duties to which they were assigned and with which they served, including the date of their enlistment, the military camps to which they went, the units to which they belonged, the date of their trip overseas, peradventure they went, the service they saw there, and the date of their return and demobilization.

c. Copies of any letters which they may have written home describing their experiences abroad or in this country.

d. A statement and description of any honor which they may have been awarded by the government. In addition to this information regarding military and naval service, it is desirable to procure for the same purpose a statement of the names of every citizen of the city who at any time engaged in any civil work connected with the war. This would embrace—

a. Those who subscribed to the various Liberty Loans, and the amount subscribed.

b. Those who belonged to the International Red Cross.

c. Those who belonged to the local branch of the Red Cross.

d. Those who performed any service of any sort in support of the national defense.

If the members of your honorable body seriously will take this matter up with your constituents, Kingston will be able to add to its long and illustrious record of patriotic achievement in American wars, the names and a list of the services of those who served in the last and greatest of all wars.

I am, gentlemen, Most respectfully yours,
A. T. CLEARWATER,
Historian of Kingston.

It is reported that women will soon be affecting shoes patterned after Tut-ankh-Amen's. We are in the market for a couple of pairs that will last as long.

There was an expensive study in black and white on the Indiana landscape the other day that some artist should have immortalized. A coal train collided with a milk train.

The first essential in getting what you want is to know what you want and the second is to want it hard enough.

"Alas, things have changed," sighed the rich old party. "Formerly, my polite attentions were taken for declarations of love; now my declarations of love are taken for polite attentions."

Our idea of an intellectual giant is one who doesn't try to argue with his wife.

STAINS FROM LEATHER CAN NOW BE REMOVED

Shoes, traveling bags, and similar articles that have come in contact with butter, lard, vaseline, linseed oil, salad oil, lubricating oil, or like greases have long been difficult to clean. Attempts to remove the spots with gasoline or other ordinary grease solvents usually results in spreading them.

Home economics workers at Cornell are now practicing a new method for cleaning leather recommended by the federal department of agriculture. This consists in coating the spots with a thick solution of rubber in a solvent that evaporates readily, and then peeling off the coating when it is almost dry. In some cases it may be necessary to repeat the operation several times. A solution of unvulcanized rubber (Para or Celcon) in carbon bisulphide, in the proportion of one part to ten parts by weight, as well as some of the prepared rubber cements, has been found satisfactory.

The cement must be very thick and applied with the brush or the solvent. Since the fumes of carbon bisulphide are very inflammable and poisonous, it is necessary to work away from flames, and where there is good ventilation.

To keep the rubber from adhering too tightly, the leather immediately around the spot may be wet slightly just before applying the rubber solution.

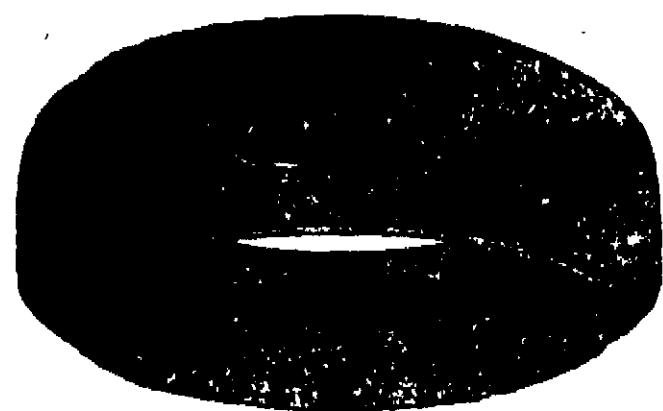

The sooner the spots can be attacked after they have been made the better.

It is especially important that spots caused by grease and other oily oils be removed before the oil is dried, since the oxidized oils are only slightly soluble in the liquids ordinarily used.

SWINEHART IDEAL TRUCK TIRES

Get Our Price

Regular sizes in stock.

The SWINEHART Truck Tire, Cellular Type, with increased wearing surface and special feature tread, assures owners a double dividend in bonus mileage and unusually satisfactory service.

It is the only satisfactory anti-skid, non-heating semi-pneumatic punctureless tire on the market.

Anti-Skid Feature.

The radial holes form a gripping suction on slippery streets, making it possible for the driver to operate his truck in safety and confidence and without the use of chains.

The size and depth of the holes as well as the angle of slant are all correctly designed and based on exhaustive scientific tests.

Non-Heating.

Heat, generated by friction on the road and the continued frequent compressions of the rubber, is a most destructive agent on tires.

The Swinehart Cellular Tire very materially overcomes this, as the holes in the tread allow free displacement of rubber and serve a cooling purpose similar to a radiator on a car.

Compare the Swinehart Ideal Cellular with any other truck tire. The Swinehart has a greater height and greater volume of rubber so shaped that it will support and transport the load, this means the load and the truck itself is properly cushioned, and means greater economy in tire mileage and much less truck upkeep expense.

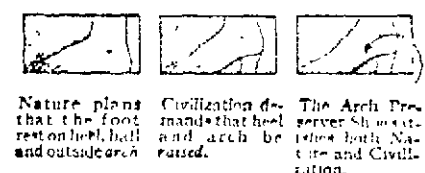

TIRE PRESS SERVICE.

Our new 250 ton tire press is ready to give you service on your truck tires.

THE ARCH PRESERVER SHOE

LOOK at the above chart. It shows facts that you already know—but possibly you hadn't connected them with your shoes. Take the foot, as Nature planned it, then as civilization has used it, and finally study how the Arch Preserver Shoe meets the requirements of both Nature and Civilization. Of course, such a shoe is superior. Of course, it gives comfort. The concealed, built-in arch bridge makes it possible to support the foot properly and yet have the smartest styles too. Let us show you the new patterns.

AUTO DEALERS MEET IN PEACE

Following Report Of Recent Show Reported And Only Controversy Is As Old As Auto Road—Still Climbing Ability.

Kingston Automotive Dealers held a regular monthly meeting at the Playhouse Hotel Wednesday evening beginning with a dinner and ending with the usual gabfest in one of the sample rooms in the basement. The principal topic under discussion was the physical condition of one of the members who had spent the day operating a Fordson tractor on his farm along the Bengertles road.

Reports of the recent automobile show proved that it was the most successful ever held, both in attendance and financial return, and a substantial sum was taken from the proceeds and added to the reserve fund, leaving still enough in the current expense fund to pay for several banquets and procure an ample supply of cigarettes for the president to smoke during and after the dinner.

After President Millard had thanked everybody for helping to make the show a success the meeting adjourned reasonably early in order to give some of the members who had been boasting of what their cars could do on the Chestnut street hill an opportunity to make good.

Nuxated Iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in wheat, lentils and apples. While metallic iron is too just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings. Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth nor upset the stomach. It is an entirely different thing from ordinary metallic iron. It quickly helps make rich red blood, revitalizes worn-out, exhausted and give you new strength and energy. Over 4,000,000 people annually are using it. At all druggists. Beware of substitutes. MISS HASBROUCK ASSUMES DUTIES

As Baby Welfare Nurse With Headquarters in Board of Health Office at City Hall—Work to Be Carried on Under Auspices of Junior League of City.

Miss Doris Hasbrouck has assumed her duties as baby welfare nurse in Kingston with headquarters in the board of health office at the city hall, where calls for her services may be left. The work is being carried on under the auspices of the Junior League of Kingston.

The league when it was organized decided that there was work that could be done in reducing infant mortality by welfare work and a committee from the league met with the board of health last month and outlined its plans which met the hearty approval of the board.

Miss Hasbrouck will cooperate with the physicians of the city and where her services are needed will work under their direction.

Miss Hasbrouck has had considerable experience in this line of work and was a member of the nursing staff of the Postgraduate Hospital in New York for some time.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. Basil C. Potter, Port Ewen, a son John Horsman Potter, at the Kingston City Hospital.
Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cooke, 176 Foxhall avenue, a son Robert John.
Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cook, North street, a daughter Thelma Irene.
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nosowitch, 72 Clinton avenue, a daughter Eleanor Anna.

Hot Game Expected.

Friday evening at 6:30 at Hasbrouck Park, Mickey's All Stars will cross bats with the U. & D. shop base ball team. A very good game is anticipated as there is shown quite some rivalry between the two managers respectively. Joe Long of the U. & D. and Mickey Broadbent of the All Stars.

The fruit of the mangrove tree of South Africa yields a strong intoxicating drink. Elephants are said to be very fond of it, becoming quite tipsy, staggering about, playing antics, screaming as so as to be heard for a mile, and sometimes having tremendous fights.

ST. JOSEPHIANS TO PRODUCE FARCE

The newly organized Dramatic Society of St. Joseph's parish will make their first bow for the public's favor Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, May 8 and 9, at 8 o'clock, in the school hall, in the farce comedy "Some Baby."

The young people of the society realize that to put over a show that had Broadway laughing for two years as their first venture, is a mighty hard task, but after weeks of strenuous and faithful rehearsals under the personal direction of John P. Mack they feel they are equal to it and are ready to prove it to the people of St. Joseph's parish and their friends on these nights.

There will be a special matinee performance for the children Sunday afternoon, May 6, at 3 o'clock.

Dancing to music followed by the Imperial Orchestra will follow the evening entertainments and refreshments will be served.

The cast of characters will include the following: The Misses Anna O'Mara, Margaret Lebert, Madeline E. Woerner and Mrs. Clarence Schryver, John P. Mack, William B. Martin, Edward J. Cullen, John A. Bennett and John P. Erne. The Rev. E. A. Duggan is the spiritual director of the society. The public is cordially invited.

Lonely Must Go It Alone.

The plan to supply feminine dinner or theater companions for lonesome gentlemen in a great city far from their native freeways, described recently, has failed, says an exchange. It provided that the stranger within New York's portals seeking pleasing companionship, was to pay $10 to a bureau conducted by two enterprising young women and be provided with a suitable companion, the bureau dividing fifty-fifty with the companion. Arrangements were made by telephone, references being exchanged. A newspaper reporter was the first customer and the plan worked fine. He wrote it up glowingly for his paper. After the news story appeared New York seemed full of lonely men. The bureau's telephone rang every five minutes and a reserve stock of companions had to be called out. But New York was "kidding" the bureau of social service. Only one man appeared to take his companion to dinner and the theater and he proposed a restaurant and a picture show. The bureau has quit. Its plan was too ideal.

Enormous Whale's Skull.

A whale skull, so large that it had to be sawed into eight pieces for handling and crating, was recently found on the shore of Alaska Bay, Alaska, by a representative of the biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, who was in the territory investigating the fox farming industry. First aid was given by the skipper of a passing ship, who took it to a nearby cannery, from which place it was possible to send it to the states. In accordance with a co-operative understanding the skull was sent to the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.

DR. WILLIAMS AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

Tells of Work of Librarian—Shows Students How They Can Be of Service by Taking Up the Work of a Librarian—Value of Libraries.

Dr. Williams, head of the public library branch of the New York State Educational Department, was the speaker at the high school Wednesday morning, his talk being on the work in the public libraries. The work one is to do in the future, said the speaker, is a question of great importance. The sooner he makes up his mind on the work he will do, the better it is for the student. There are three classes of men, those who regret that they have to work, those who are chiefly concerned in making money, and those who look upon working for a living as a necessary thing but who are trying to make more out of their work than a money-making proposition. The first class does not deserve consideration. The second class is the largest, and to it belong most of the workers of today. The third class is the smallest, but the greatest. When we labor for no other reason than to amass a fortune for our own comfort, we do work that makes us little better than the animals. After all, the thing that gives us pleasure is not what we have acquired, but what we have done to help others. We are entitled to live, and get pleasure out of life. We must make real use of the world in some way. In order to make the most of our lives, we must train.

In speaking of schools, most people think of the college as a place where the boys and girls are educated. This is a mistaken view. The college does not educate its students. Any one line demands more study than is gotten at a college. The college merely trains the student to educate himself. It is rare that a college student is ever thoroughly educated at college.

The education of a person, then, comes after he has gone through college. A person must have a source of knowledge for his work and this source is the public library. The public library is one of the greatest institutions for education that there is, and its value is now coming to be appreciated. One hundred years ago, more than half the people in this country were illiterate. Even today, it is estimated that ninety per cent of the people cannot read intelligently. They must be trained. The public library is growing as the people seek education. The scope of the work of public libraries is today over thirty times what it was twenty years ago. Twenty years ago, the income of the libraries was about one-half a million dollars; today it is five and a half millions.

The reading matter is broadening. There are now books on all topics, books for study, which are more than helpful to those who want to study up one line of work. Work like this will be extended even further as time goes on. It will not be long before there will be men nor women to help the person study, to help them look up their material, to secure others who know the work thoroughly to help in the work.

Here then is a great field, mostly for girls, but also for boys. The educational field is a big one, and the library work of it is the greatest in the educational field. There is a chance for helping others. It is interesting work for those who like books, and it is a position that is looked up to by all.
